Stretch Film

Understanding Film

Selecting a stretch film that provides the right yield strength and performance for the loads being wrapped is crucial. The yield strength denotes the amount of stress a stretch film can withstand without permanently having plastic deformation. Prior to reaching the yield point a stretch film will elastically deform but return to its original shape once the stress is removed.

Need help selecting ? Call us on 01384 254 972

We've categorised our stretch films into four different strengths

Light	(typically 11-15 microns)
Standard	(typically 16-19 microns)
Heavy	(typically 20-21 microns)
Super Heavy	(typically 25-34 microns)

Silica Gel

Silica gel is a drying agent that adsorbs and holds atmospheric moisture and water vapour and our silica packets do this in order to prevent product deterioration caused by condensation, corrosion, fungus, rusting etc. Used extensively in healthcare, electronic, optical, pharmaceutical, engineering and military applications, silica packets remain dry and free flowing even when saturated.

Polythene

Understanding

Polythene

Selecting a polybag that provides the right strength and performance for the product being packaged is crucial. If a thin gauge bag is used for a heavy item or an item with sharp edges then this could cause the bag to tear and subsequently damage the product.

We've categorised our poly bags into four different strengths

Light	-	90-100 gauge
Std	-	120 gauge
Med	-	200-250 gauge
Heavy	-	500 gauge
